TRANSFORMING HIGHER EDUCATION THROUGH ENGAGED SCHOLARSHIP

SEPTEMBER 30 – OCTOBER 3, 2018
MINNEAPOLIS, MINNESOTA

Hosted by the University of Minnesota in partnership with the North Central ESC Region
WELCOME FROM ANDREW FURCO, UNIVERSITY OF MINNESOTA ASSOCIATE VICE PRESIDENT FOR PUBLIC ENGAGEMENT

Welcome to Minnesota, home of the 19th annual meeting of the Engagement Scholarship Consortium.

This year’s conference theme, Transforming Higher Education Through Engaged Scholarship, resonates greatly with all of us who work at the University of Minnesota. Over the past 18 years, we have sought to transform our University from being a “university with community engagement programs” to an “engaged university”. This effort has focused on revising our promotion and tenure guidelines in 2007, establishing and implementing a University-wide strategic agenda for furthering the institutionalization of public engagement, and advancing our institution’s policies, infrastructure, and culture in order to make community-engaged scholarship a integral component of our overall academic enterprise.

We greatly welcome this opportunity to learn new strategies and gather further insight from you as you share your expertise and experiences through the conference’s more than 250 concurrent sessions.

This conference takes places during a critical time in our nation’s history in which higher education’s ability to address society’s most challenging issues is being questioned by legislators, business leaders, community residents, and even our students and faculty. The discussions and debates that will take place during this conference will surely bring to the fore some of the key issues that higher education will need to consider in the coming years, and the important role that engaged scholarship, in particular, will play in advancing higher education’s academic and public agendas.

I hope you will take some time to experience the wonderful array of features that Minnesota has to offer, from award winning restaurants, to great museums, to scenic hiking and biking trails, to unique bridges and architectural sites, to inspiring Native American cultural sites, and to the many beautiful lakes and rivers.

Enjoy the conference!
